

A group of four people (three men and one woman) are standing in a rage room. They are all wearing black jumpsuits, safety glasses, and gloves. They are holding various tools like hammers and axes. The room has a grey concrete wall and a large window that has been shattered. There is debris on the floor, including a broken monitor and a tire. The background is a mix of grey and orange.

03

WHY RAGE ROOMS WORK

Use this page when explaining the activity internally. Keep the focus on shared experience, morale, communication and novelty - not therapy claims.

1

Shared reset

A high-energy activity can help teams step out of the normal office routine and reset together.

2

Stronger connection

Unusual shared experiences often create easier conversation and memorable stories.

3

Better communication

Teams coordinate turns, listen to venue staff and support colleagues through the session.

4

Novel reward

A rage room can feel more distinctive than another dinner or bowling night.

5

Culture moment

Done properly, it becomes an internal story people remember after the event.

04

INTERNAL PLANNING CHECKLIST

☐ Define the event objective: morale, reward, social bonding, onboarding or celebration.

☐ Confirm the team size and whether attendance is optional or expected.

☐ Set a draft budget and identify the approval owner.

☐ Check company policy for off-site events, waivers, accessibility and alcohol.

☐ Shortlist at least two venues and compare capacity, travel time, price and safety process.

☐ Ask the venue for risk, insurance, waiver and PPE details.

☐ Create a run sheet with arrival, briefing, session, food and departure times.

☐ Send staff invite with dress code, arrival time and waiver instructions.

☐ Confirm transport, accessibility needs and dietary requirements.

☐ Collect feedback after the event and compare outcomes with the original goal.

05

VENUE COMPARISON SCORECARD

Compare at least two venues before requesting budget approval. Score each venue from 1 to 5, then add notes.

Venue	Location / travel	Capacity	Cost pp	Safety info	Corporate fit	Total	Notes
Venue 1
Venue 2
Venue 3
Venue 4

What makes a strong corporate venue?

- Clear safety briefing and staff supervision.
- Transparent pricing with group package options.
- Easy travel, parking or public transport access.
- Suitable session rotation for larger teams.
- Professional communication and waiver process.

Red flags

Avoid venues that cannot clearly answer safety, waiver, capacity, accessibility, cancellation or insurance questions.

06

SAFETY QUESTIONS FOR THE VENUE

Ask these before booking. Do not assume every venue has the same process, equipment or age rules.

Q1 What PPE is provided and is it included in the package price?

Q2 What footwear and clothing rules are mandatory?

Q3 What age, health or access restrictions apply?

Q4 How many staff supervise each session?

Q5 What first aid process is in place?

Q6 Are waivers required and can we review them before booking?

Q7 What is the maximum group size per room and per session?

Q8 How are larger groups rotated safely?

Q9 Are photos and videos allowed inside the room?

Q10 What cancellation, rescheduling and refund terms apply?

Q11 Do you hold public liability insurance?

Q12 Can you support accessibility needs or reasonable adjustments?

Important

This page helps with planning only. Venue staff instructions, waivers and your company policy take priority.

14

TEAM REFLECTION WORKSHEET

Use these prompts for a short, optional debrief. Keep it light, practical and workplace-appropriate.

1. What made the activity memorable?

2. What did we notice about how the team communicates under pressure?

3. What helped people feel included?

4. What should we repeat for future team events?

5. What should we avoid next time?

6. What is one practical action we can bring back to work?

15

ROI & GOALS WORKSHEET

Do not overclaim ROI. Choose a small number of practical goals before the event, then compare feedback afterwards.

Goal / metric	Before event	After event	Target / decision
Morale / team mood
Cross-team connection
Recognition / reward impact
Attendance / participation
Safety and organisation score
Would repeat?

Useful framing

For most teams, the clearest value is not hard financial ROI. It is participation, morale, memory, staff feedback and whether the event is worth repeating.
